EDITOR'S NOTE

California Dreaming

Just back from the largest comic convention and "WOW! What a show!" For those of you who have never been to a comic convention, Comic-Con is worth making the trip to southern California. In this month's issue we bring you scenes from Comic-Con in San Diego, California. From some of the coolest costumes to some of the newest DBZ toys about to hit the stores, this show had it all!

And the thought of California also reminds me of Hollywood. A few months back we asked you, the fans, to vote on which Hollywood superstar should fill the roles in the upcoming feature film about Dragon Ball Z. Well the votes have been counted and in this month's feature, Casting Call, on page 14 we show, you the fans, who you would like to see play the different parts and what saga.

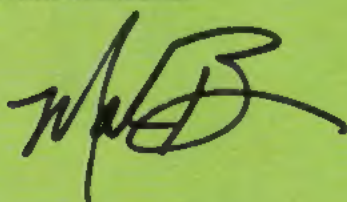

Without a doubt, Dragon Ball Z's superstar is Goku. And this month's feature, on page 19, Collecting Goku is a checklist of all the current Goku related items.

Just south of California in a small Mexican town, is one of the world's largest toy manufacturing plants owned by Mattel. In 2000, Mattel released Dragon Ball Z figures and in this month's Fantastic Plastic column, on page 30, we will give you a small introduction into the various figures.

This month's card feature is Capsule Corp. Power Pack on page 24. These cards are the hottest cards in town. Fill your decks with the likes of King Kai, Master Roshi, or Future Gohan and no one will be able to stop you!

That's all for now, Dude! Keep those Fan LetterZ coming and don't forget about our Super Saiyan survey on page 66. You could be the proud owner of a free prism promo card!

THEY'RE IN THE ARMY NOW!

THE GOOD, THE BAD & THE CIRCUITRY:

The Red Ribbon Army was the first truly formidable force that Goku dealt with. After countless battles with the RR Army's seemingly endless supply of troops, Goku finally defeated the military maniacs once and for all. But who exactly made up the backbone of the once feared force? This month we're spotlighting the members of the Red Ribbon Army.

Red Leader

He is the mastermind behind the Red Ribbon Army. Red Leader is a remarkably short man with an eye patch over his right socket. He runs the RR Army with little remorse for any life, whether it is a friend or foe. Red was searching for the Dragon Balls, but kept his desired wish to himself. While Goku was invading the RR Headquarters, Red let his ideal wish slip out, a wish to be taller. His servant, Mr. Black, then shot him to death for creating the military force for the purpose of such an absurd wish.

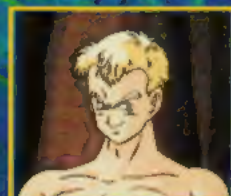

Mr. Black

Mr. Black is Red Leader's extremely tall and slender servant. He suffers through his boss' radical and obsessive lifestyle, in hopes that one day he will serve the man who rules the world. However, as it turned out, Red Leader wasn't going to make a wish to control the world at all. When Black heard this, he shot Red Leader to death and then faced off against Goku in the massive mechanical Battle Jacket. He is defeated when Goku propels himself through the center of the Battle Jacket, causing it to explode with Mr. Black still inside.

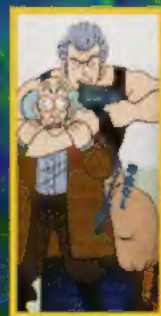

Commander Blue

Blue is an ambiguous and powerful character that possesses strength surpassing any normal human's talents. He pursues Goku through the pirate's cave and even manages to survive an aerial battle with Goku, only to land in Penguin Village from Dr. Slump. When the combined force of Goku and Arale Chan is too much for Blue, he returns to base, only to be killed as a test-subject for the hired assassin, Tao Pai Pai.

Commander White

As the keeper of Muscle Tower far to the north on the outskirts of Jingle Village, Commander White has no special talents, but he is a sneak and uses every trick in the book to try and stop Goku as he makes his way up the tower. An enraged Ha Chan then defeated White after he shot Goku.

Captain Yellow

A plane-flying Tiger, Yellow is dispatched by Goku when he tries to kidnap Upa, who he thinks is carrying a Dragon Ball with him. He isn't around for very long in the series, and the rest of the men under his command are all defeated by Upa's father, Bora.

Captain Violet

Violet appears only briefly in the Dragon Ball comic, but is clearly seen as a pilot for the Red Ribbon Army in the Dragon Ball 10th Anniversary movie. She is the only known female commanding officer in the RR Army.

UNEARTHING THE DATA OF DRAGON BALL Z CHARACTERS

Captain Silver

The first commanding officer of the RR Army actually seen in the series, Captain Silver is a muscular warrior who is talented with projectile weapons. He is defeated, but not killed by Goku with only two kicks. After his encounter with Son, he calls Red Leader and informs him of the boy. It is a problem that will only get worse for the RR Army.

Buyon

A giant pink blob and the trickiest of villains in Muscle Tower, Buyon is the first opponent that Goku finds trouble dealing with. Goku discovers normal attacks cannot harm Buyon since he is so blubbery and slippery. During the fight, Goku remembers how he almost froze to death in the cold weather outside, and hopes the same will happen to Buyon. He smashes a hole in the wall, letting cold air shoot into the room, which freezes Buyon in his tracks just as planned.

Agent Murasaki

A ninja with more tricks up his sleeve than the average magician, he is the 4th floor guardian and proves to be an amusing distraction for Goku, more than anything else. Even when he reveals his four brothers, he is nothing more than a twig in the path for Goku. This battle displays some traditional Japanese weapons and evasion techniques, as Murasaki is a ninja.

Sergeant Metallic

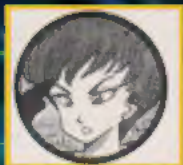

The first artificial human that Goku battles is this Arnold look-a-like. Metallic is the 3rd floor guardian of Muscle Tower. Goku blasts his head off with a Kamehameha, but didn't realize that he was fighting a robot. He starts a Buddhist chant, but is rudely awakened when the headless body starts attacking him. Goku is at a loss for techniques, but luckily the motors in Metallic shut down by themselves and Goku hurries past him.

Artificial Human 8

At first this Frankenstein's monster look-a-like seems to be a major threat to Goku. However, he ends up having a will of his own after he is activated and decides not to fight against Goku, but instead team up with him. Goku bestows upon him the nickname Ha Chan, and they become excellent friends. Ha Chan also plays a very important role in the DB 10th Anniversary Movie.

Dr. Gero

Although it was unknown that he was a member of the Red Ribbon Army up until the Cell Saga, Dr. Gero was actually the creator of Artificial Human 8. As a member of the Red Ribbon Army, even after its defeat, Gero took it upon himself to destroy the boy, Goku, who ruined the Red Ribbon Army's plot. One sometimes wonders what he would have done if he knew what Red Leader's real wish was. The Dragon Ball anime made a filler episode that credited Dr. Frappe as the creator of Artificial Human 8. This was probably the biggest plot-hole in the entire series, but it is understandable since even at that time, Toriyama didn't know he was going to create Gero several years later. ★

Fan Letter Z

Howdy folks! And welcome to our second action packed installment of Fan Letter Z. We hope ya'll enjoyed it last time because there's more to come, so let's quit fiddilin' around and get right to it... (Texas humor, sorry, it had to be done).

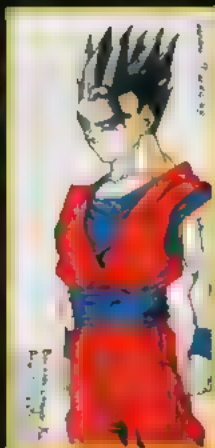

Coming Soon! Dragon Ball AF !!!

Dear Beckett DBZ,

"I was wondering when Dragon Ball GT will be coming to Cartoon Network? I've been reading about something on the Internet called Dragon Ball AF. It tells about what happens after GT. Is AF real or fake? I have a funny feeling it's fake. It sounded pretty stupid too. In the story it says Frieza gets good. I also have a recommended Web site for you if you want fake DBZ pics. Go to Ashok's DBZ web page. See ya!"

Thanks, The Luke Man, Sadieville, KY.

Well man, or should I say Luke Man, you'll have to wait a while before you see Dragon Ball GT on Cartoon Network. Dragon Ball GT isn't scheduled to air on Cartoon Network until the second quarter of 2003, but rumor has it the first few videos will be released before it airs on television. And yeah, you should trust that funny feeling, because Dragon Ball AF is a fake. Maybe the AF stands for "A Fake"...beb, beb, beb. Oh, and thanks for the cards...I have them hanging at my desk.

Hurray for Hollywood?

"I would think that this real life movie of Dragon Ball Z will ruin all of the good qualities of DBZ because Dragon Ball Z in my opinion is best as anime and not in real life because how would they make the hair look good. Please send your reply on if you think what I am saying is right or wrong please."

Sincerely, A concerned DBZ fan

P.S. I am one of the most hard-core DBZ fans ever, don't let this movie ruin that for me!!!!!!!!!!!!!! From: SSGotenks3gt via e-mail.

No, no, no SSGotenks3gt, a live action Dragon Ball Z movie wouldn't ruin all of the good qualities of DBZ, it would only enhance them, at least if I was directing it that is... (hint, hint). I see what you mean about the hair though, the Dragon Ball bairdos are kind of a staple of the DBZ mythos; you just gotta have the hair. Well, hair or no hair, the Dragon Ball live action movie is rolling into theatres sometime in the next few years and I can't wait. Speaking of the DBZ movie, check out this issue's casting call results page called: "The Votes Are In" for some fun fan picks on the players of the parts. And have faith

SSGotenks3gt, all will be well, beck even Akira Toriyama is looking forward to the movie.

Super Cell 1, Super Cell 2, Super Cell 3 Oh My!

"Is there a limit to Cell's power? If he had survived after the battle with Gohan, what would his power level become? If there was say another Perfect or Imperfect Cell, Would the cells of Piccolo in his body allow him to fuse with another Cell to become an Ultra or Supreme Cell? Could the cells of Frieza and King Cold allow him to have new Transformations allowing his power to double or triple? Or would all of the Saiyans' cells allow him to have different super stages for example Super Cell 1, Super Cell 2, Super Cell 3, and so on? Could he use the Kaio-ken attack to an extreme level like Goku? What's your opinion? Because I think he would have been the final onslaught to the Universe if he had lived. P.S. Would you please submit my question in your magazine I would like to see if your readers and fans could give an answer or opinion to my question? THANK YOU!! YOU ARE NUMBER 1."

DBZ's most powerful Fan, Grover Mitchell
Via E-Mail

You're welcome! Thank you! Well Grover, I went and asked Cell what he thought of your questions and of course he agreed. He would have been the final onslaught to the Universe if he had lived. He went on to say that Piccolo's cells would have allowed him to fuse with another cell, and that King Cold and Frieza's cells would indeed allow his power to double, triple, quadruple even. And he didn't stop there. He said yes, all of the Saiyan's cells would give him different super stages like Super Cell 1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8,9.....I got tired of writing somewhere around 265 and made up an excuse to leave. Man that guy can ramble, I know better than to get him started now. Well, what do you FanZ out there think? What would Cell's power level have become if he survived his battle with Gohan?

Super Saiya-GirlZ!

Dear DBZ Collector,

"Every time I open your DBZ Collector Magazine I just see Goku, Gohan, Trunks, Goten and the other guys, but I never see one of the girls. I mean the guys are great, and my favorite DBZ character is a boy, but I think that the girls need a little credit too. What I'm trying to say is that you can do something about Videll, Chi Chi, Bulma, Pan or even great Saiya-jin women! Please!"

P.S. write me back, "AVALON" DBZ fan. Pasadena, TX.

AVALON, boy that's the name of a really cool live action Japanese movie that came out a while back, and it happens to have a GIRL in the lead role....coincidence? Anyway, we actually did do a "Z-Files" on Videll and Android 18 back in issue # 9. Chi Chi had a moment in the spotlight in issue # 12's "Z-Files" and Bulma Briefs had hers back in issue # 14. Unfortunately we're sold out of those back issues, but maybe you can talk one of your friends into giving you theirs...beb, beb, beb. If all else fails you may want to check out one of our online auctions at www.beckett.com or even E-Bay has been known to feature some of our back issues. But have no fear; there's always room for more DBZ girlZ in future issues! Good luck with the back issues! Ahh, girl power!

Okay Z fans, that's all for our Fan LetterZ page this time, but we hope to have many more in the future! So if you have any questions or comments please send them to "Fan LetterZ" via e-mail to dbz@beckett.com or snail mail to Beckett Dragon Ball Z Collector, Attn: Fan LetterZ 15850 Dallas Parkway Dallas, Texas 75248. ★

CASTING CALL

By Richard Shell and

The Votes Are In!

Well everybody, back in issue 18 of the magazine we told you 20th Century FOX recently purchased the feature film rights to the "Dragon Ball" property and are planning to develop it into a live action movie. According to this excerpt from The Official Dragon Ball Z website it appears as if the balls are rolling:

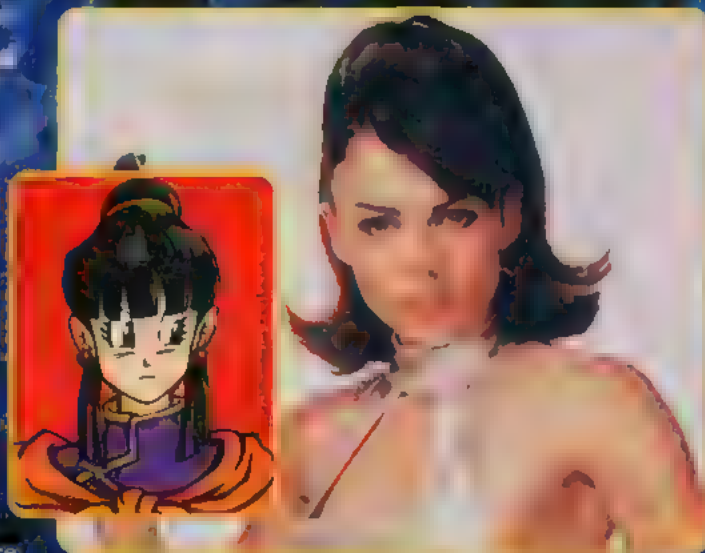

Recently Dragon Ball Z's creator, Akira Toriyama, met in Japan with Fox executives to discuss creative plans for the property. Toriyama had this to say, "Recent movies have surprised us by entering such territory that used to belong only to anime with wonderful technology and wisdom. As a big movie fan, I am truly looking forward to the movie version of Dragonball. I hope you will entertain millions and millions of people with my brand new Dragonball of a totally new dimension that surpasses my imagination." Source: www.bob-goodreporter.com & www.dragonballz.com

How about that? I mean, Akira Toriyama himself is looking forward to the movie! I know I am, and it's safe to say we're not alone. But for now it's time to roll out our Carpet, because in that very same issue number 18 we asked you the fans, to tell us your predictions on who will play the parts and what saga will make the cut. Well your votes have been tallied and the results are in, and now the moment you've all been waiting for...

Saga fans want to see: The Cell Saga

Dragon Ball Z has many action packed sagas to choose from, and you the fans have spoken. The first runner up for the saga category is... The Majin Buu Saga. And receiving the most votes for what saga fans want to see is (Drum roll please)... The Cell Saga. The Majin Buu or Cell Saga huh? Man, haven't you people ever heard of starting at the beginning? Frieza is going to be very upset when he reads this.

Elizabeth Hurley as Chi Chi

OK, now it's on to whom the fans think should play the parts, and since I'm such a nice guy it's ladies first. (Who said I wasn't?)

dead?) The first runner up to play the part of the charming Chi Chi is none other than the lovely Sandra Bullock. And now, the winner for the coveted role of Chi Chi is the electrifying Elizabeth Hurley.

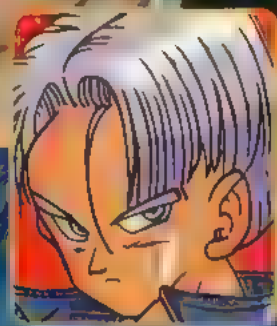

Nicole Kidman as Bulma

The girl power doesn't end there. As the winner for the playful part of the beautiful Bulma goes to the over-talented Nicole Kidman. Flipping to second, we have an even tie between the dynamic duo of Drew Barrymore and Cameron Diaz.

Leonardo DiCaprio as Trunks

In the spirit of "women and children first" we'll continue with the kids of DBZ, well at least characters that use to be kids. Who, you wonder is the vote getter to play the son of Vegeta? Winning the role of the part of the young Trunks is the lucky Leonardo DiCaprio. Tiedling in as second place is the Empire's love boy Drew Barrymore. No! You're not! I'll never join you!

Keanu Reeves as Gohan

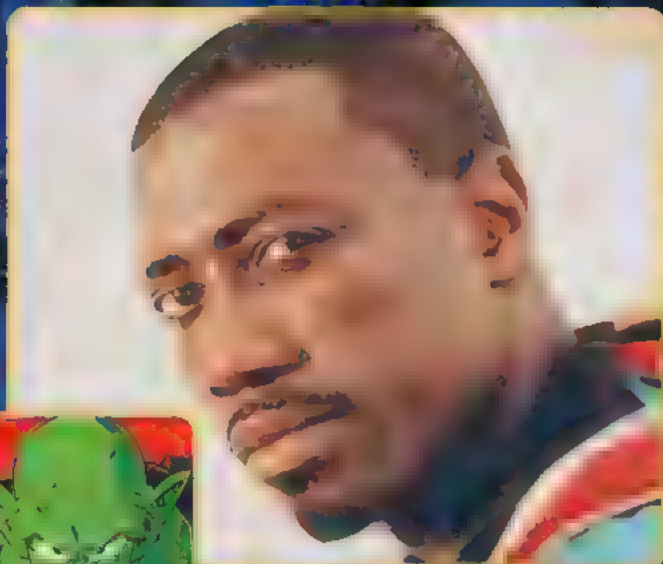

Next up in the kids of DBZ category is the over-lovin' son of Kakarot, Gohan. This one was close, but according to your votes the victor for the role of Gohan goes to the cyber-kickin' Keanu Reeves. Coming in second, hot on the heels of Keanu is the fantastic Frankie Muniz and his dog Skip (just kidding about the dog part; Skip wants to try out for Mean Streets dog, Beau).

Wesley Snipes as Vin Diesel as Piccolo

No Dragon Ball movie would be complete without our noble Namekian, Piccolo. And who do the fans want to garish the green make-up? Well it looks like the fans don't know because we've got ourselves a tie. Deadlocked in the battle to assume the antennae is the vigilant Vin Diesel and the vampire hunter himself, Wesley Snipes. Furthering the fans uncertainty is a three-way tie for second place between Ray Park, Tom "The Easter Ji" and Bill Goldberg.

Vin Diesel as Piccolo

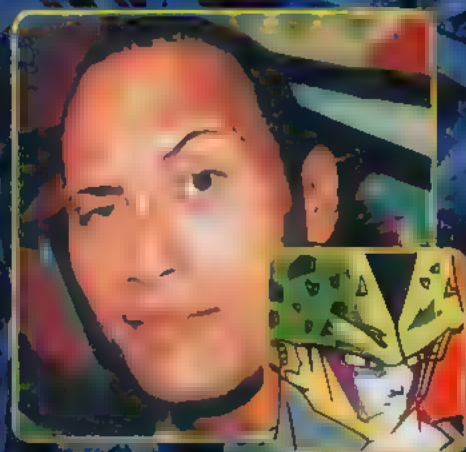

If a Dragon Ball movie isn't complete without the green-skinned guardian, it definitely isn't complete without a nasty villain to fight. Even though poor Fieeza didn't win the same thing, he still gets his chance at the casting. Accumulating the most votes for the rigid role of Fieeza is the victorious Vin Diesel. Coming in at second place is another tie, this time between the multi-talented Mike Myers and the tactful Tom Cruise. Mike Myers or Tom Cruise!?! If Fieeza wasn't dead before, he's really gonna be steamed now.

The Rock as Cell

Well we already know The God-Saga is the one the fans want to see, but whom do we want to play the part? The winner for the ruthless, pole of the evil android Cell goes to the sword swinging Scorpion King himself, The Rock. This was a close one, with the first runner up being Austria's own strong-armed super star, Arnold Schwarzenegger. Arnold may not have won first place, but it's OK because...he'll be back.

Dana Carvey as Master Roshi

Now it's time for the comic relief, and the winner of our tantalizing Turtle Hermit award. But first, the second place winner for the ram-bunctious role of the mischievous Master Roshi is the swashbuckling Sean Connery. And without further ado, the actor fans want to see sport the super-slyish red shades of Roshi is a master in his own right, a Master of Disguise that is, Dana Carvey.

Verne Troyer as Mimi Me DeVito as Krillin

Before we shave the scalp and dish out the dots to the winner(s) of the side-kicking role of Krillin, it's time for second place. And the second place winner for the role of Goku's childhood cousin is the brave but balding, Bruce Willis. As you may have guessed, head-to-head for the fan's fabulous first place pick is the dashing Danny DeVito and the voracious Verne Troyer. OK, I have to admit the results for this one had me going for some things "Mimi Me" as Krillin! Hah! That's just me, hilarious, but great!

Jet Li as Vegeta

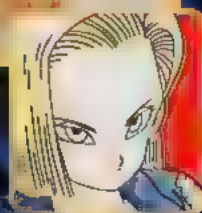

All right, we've had our fun but now it's time to get down to the nitty-gritty and announce our winners for the selected Saiyan. If a Dragon Ball movie definitely isn't complete without Piccolo and a nasty villain to fight, then it's definitely 100% incomplete without the man you love to hate, or should I say the man who loved to hate Vegeta. There was really no contest for who the fans want to see play the villainous Vegeta—this guy won by a landslide. And just who is this guy to play the proud, pointy-haired Saiyan Prince you ask? The holder of the most votes for arch-rival of the legendary warrior Goku the great is the Thai Chi Master himself, Jet Li. Oddly enough, second place ended up being a five way tie between an awesome array of actors including: Steven Seagal, Vin Diesel, David Boreanaz, Ray Park and Mel Gibson.

Robin Shou as Goku

And now, the moment you've all REALLY been looking forward to: Son Goku. Call him what you want, Kakarot, New Goku or just plain Goku, this nimble Nimbus rider is the star of the show. And whom do the fans want to adorn the orange uniform and play the happy-go-lucky Super Saiyan villain oppo? The mighty master of Martial Kombat that's who, the rollicking Robin Shou! Although Robin Shou won by an overwhelming majority, our first runner-up, the jumping Jackie Chan, wasn't without his fair share of votes (sort of), so yes, Joe Li and Robin Shou as Vegeta and Goku huh? Yeah, that would definitely be some on-screen dynamics for the library books ladies and gentlemen. TOT has to cast these two!

Cameron Diaz as Android 18

Before we go there's one more category left, that's right, the winner for the "Other Category." Out of all the other characters in Dragon Ball Z the one with the most votes in votes was by a large the beautiful and deadly Android 18. Not only did the vast majority of fans want to see Android 18, they knew whom they wanted to play her as well. And the lucky lady fans want to see as like an android, is none other than the charmingly cute and charismatic Cameron Diaz! Well there you have it Z fans, your picks for the players of the parts in the upcoming live action Dragon Ball movie. Now all that's left is for the folks in Hollywood to pick up a copy of this magazine and start calling in the actors. See you at the show!

DRAGON BALL Z BY MATTEL

Reissues and repaints in Latin and South America

DBZ INTERNATIONAL

One of the most remarkable things about Dragon Ball Z is its uniqueness.

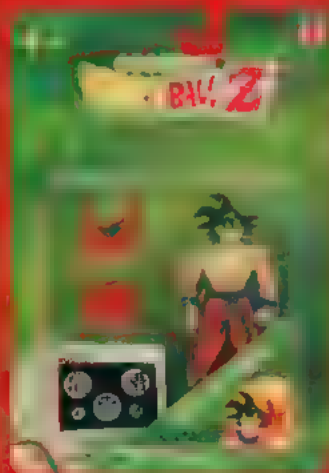

Dragon Ball Z has many of its jokes and references are distinctly Japanese, people all over the world seem to enjoy the series equally.

The latest area to jump on the Dragon Ball bandwagon is Latin and South America. In these areas of the world, the show is just starting to take off, and as we all know, toys quickly follow. However, Irwin isn't making toys for this market. Rather, it was international toy giant Mattel that made an attempt at selling Dragon Ball toys in the Southern Hemisphere.

CONTINUING TREND

In this market, Mattel followed a strategy similar to the one Irwin used in approaching the North American market.

Irwin used the original Bandai figures and repaints of a toy originally made either in Japan, Europe, or North America. Unlike Irwin, Mattel was trying to stay as close to the original lines as possible.

For instance, Mattel re-released most of the Bandai Super Battle Collection figures, specifically volumes 00-19, 28-38 and 40-42. This includes the Son Goku Perfect Vegeta and the Super Saiyan 4 figures. However, instead of splitting them up and releasing only a few at a time, as Irwin did, Mattel kept the Japanese volume numbers, and put out all the figures at once. This included not only the DBZ figures, but the Dragon Ball GT figures as well. Each figure came in a blister pack and glued to a green hacker card (which had either the Dragon Ball Z or the Dragon Ball GT logo), with the figure's name and number on a paper insert. The rarest of these figures match up with the rarest of the Bandai SBC pretty well, with 00 (SSJ Vegeta), 005 (Trunks), and 10 (SS Broly) apparently being hardest to find.

Mattel also released the Bandai blasting energy figures that Irwin released in the US, with similar packaging to the Super Battle Collection. Unlike Irwin, however, Mattel did not release any figures from the European AB Toy Super Guerriers Articule line.

PLAY SETS

The majority of DBZ figures Mattel released were originally made by AB Toys. In fact, when these toys first hit the market, many North American collectors scrambled around in search of the playsets in the AB versions of those sets, as they were extremely expensive.

One example of rarity is the Mr. Satan playset. The set came with four 4" figures: Tien, SS3 Goku, Videl, and Mr. Satan, as well as the "Satan Car". The figures, sadly enough, were the most articulated figures available at the time. These figures have joints at the neck, shoulders, hips and knees, and though Mattel plans to release one later this year, this is still the only Tien action figure available anywhere. The car has a removable European version only in the fact that the flames painted on it are red instead of blue. Available for $30, including shipping to South America, this edition was much cheaper than the European version, which had cost for more than $100.

According to their website, Mattel also released the Goku and Motorbike set, which included the same four-inch SS3 Goku figure from the Mr. Satan Car set.

Additionally, Mattel released a Mr. Satan playset with Majin Buu and SS3 Goku figures, and the Nimbus Cloud Playset which was Irwin's first original offering in North America.

Of all the Dragon Ball Z Mattel released only one is widely available in the US. The "Frieza's Spaceship" playset is still available at many online stores that specialize in Dragon Ball Z. This set, originally made by AB Toys, was made to interact with the 2-inch figures, and is about a foot in diameter.

SHORT LIVED

Unfortunately, Mattel appears to have discontinued their Dragon Ball line. This comes in response mainly to poor sales, but one can only wonder if they are not repeating the mistake of Bandai. Bandai also dropped the American line due to poor sales and before the show really became a hit. If so, perhaps another company will come in later to produce more original Dragon Ball toys for today's market, but only time will tell... ★

Strategy:

Get out the dragon balls fast while stopping your opponent's attacks and ending combat often.

Fix it Up

Kidtrunks206, your deck is quite nice, and can be really effective against many of the other more common deck types out there, but we need to make this deck even faster, and have it fight back better against more dominant decks. Here is the revised deck, followed by a card type analysis of what was changed, and why.

Main Personality: [4]

- Android 18 Lv. 1
- Android 18 Lv. 2
- Android 18 Lv. 3
- Android 18 Lv. 4

Physical Combat: (3)

- x3 Blue Pivot Kick

Energy Combat: (5)

- x3 Yamcha's Skillful Defense
- x2 Goku's Super Saiyan Blast

Android 18

In your deck, Android 18 played the role of a Villain, which can be both beneficial and harmful to your deck. In one way, you may not always get to go first, but on the other hand, you get the benefit of having four Android 18's Stare Down. Playing Android 18 as a Hero allows you greater flexibility in a Dragon Ball deck (referred to as DBall from now on) thanks to Caught Off Guard Drill, which can remove those nasty cards that will rip your deck apart.

Non-Combat Cards

Looking through the basic Non-Combats added to your deck I was a little surprised. This deck is nice, however, you will have a very hard time winning a game if your DBalls keep getting stolen. To prevent this, Goku's Capturing Drill was added, as well as the ability to stop just about any attack with Huge Drill and Android 20 Absorbing Drill. Focused decks can hardly touch you now, and Krillin's Heat Seeking Blast will just be a simple energy attack.

Combat Cards

Goku's DBall Quest is the best way to get out many DBalls very fast. In a combination with Battle Pausing, you can hardly lose. However, if you are going to do that combo, you'll need to have x3 Battle Pausing, or none at all. Also, for every deck x3 Trunks Energy Sphere are necessary. Although that card can not do much unless your opponent is using Combat cards or other Trunks Energy Spheres, without them, your deck would be toast. Drills are for the Weak and A Father Struggles are your best hope against Orange Anti-DBall decks, and Brothers in Training can get out those important drills as well as provide ample endurance.

Physical Combat Cards

Blue Round Throw is a great choice for a blue card with its abilities to either stop or perform an attack, but with x3 of each Omni-Block, and plenty of combat enders, you should be fine. Blue Pivot Kick is possibly the best way to steal a Dragon Ball, since you can name Earth Dragon Ball Capture with Caught off Guard Drill to prevent your opponent from winning.

Energy Combat Cards

Again, it is truly necessary to run these two omni-blocks, and for the time being, not any of the others. Only two Goku's Super Saiyan Blasts were put in this deck, however, you can add another. Two were in for the sake that this deck relies on a speedy victory, and the more cards you have in your deck, the more you slow it down. If you say "but it's only one card!" then you should think twice about what you're saying, because odds are, there is only one card that can really beat your deck.

Issue 24

Next month we'll have exclusive content about World Games, Regionals, Nationals, and Worlds info on what decks won, what they used, how they did, and strategies for the best card gamer in all of us. Stay tuned, because you will surely not want to miss the next exciting issue of Beckett Dragon Ball Z Collector! ★

DBZ ONLINE

By Rick Dyer

Are Webmasters After My Job?

Occasionally I get letters from readers asking if writing about Dragon Ball web pages for Beckett's Dragon Ball Z Collector is as cool as it seems. Of course it is! I have a blast looking at all the creative web pages Dragon Ball fans come up with and writing about them. But apparently, I'm not the only one doing this!

New Discoveries

There are actually quite a few sites out there that review Dragon Ball web pages. Some of them only offer a line or two of description for each site mentioned. A good example of this is the newly redesigned Dragon Ball 100 site (<http://www.DragonBall100.com>), which seems to use descriptions provided by the site owners. They also rank the sites by reader votes, so the top sites are apparently the most popular. They actually have over two thousand Dragon Ball web pages in their database, and webmasters can submit their own and try to gather votes.

More thorough reviews can be found at the DBZ Fan Emporium (<http://www.dbzfe.com/sitereviews/sitereviews.shtml>), where a half dozen sites get detailed descriptions and are rated on a one to ten scale. Webmaster Anuj and his staff have put together a chatty, well-designed site, and it offers humor, fiction, artwork, contests and a lot of stuff for beginners.

The Karin Sanctuary (<http://karinsanctuary.8k.com>) doesn't actually have a full-fledged site review section, but every month, Karin writes a news section that usually has detailed descriptions and links to Dragon Ball web pages she likes. Past months are archived on the site and are worth digging out. Most of the fun stuff is in her "Random" section.

On the lighter side, Savage Z has a "site review" section (<http://www.dbcollection.com/savagez/sitereviews.html>) that pokes fun at site ratings by giving real web sites scores for such things as "purple penalty", "creepy Doujinshi penalty" "You can be more bitter than that penalty", and the ever popular "Female webmaster infatuation bonus," among others. The entire Savage Z site is full of crazy Dragon Ball stuff, although some of the content is aimed at older readers.

Top-notch links with very short reviews can be found at DBZGT Legacy (<http://www.dbzgtlegacy.com/links.shtml>). They describe their system like this: "These are the pick of the bunch on the web, each link complete with a review of the respective site so you can be sure on the quality of it. The links are separated into the following categories: Official, General, Characters, Multimedia and Miscellaneous." DBZGT legacy is an excellent all-around site, covering a wide range of Dragon Ball information.

Animalia!

While the Anime Fan Page Reviews (<http://afp250.bravepages.com/rev.html>) covers all sorts of anime, many Dragon Ball pages are covered, and they welcome submissions. The webmasters attempt to review a site once a week, so there are many reasons to come back time and again.

Far and away, the finest web site review page on the Internet is Seven Stars Dragon Ball (<http://sevenstars.square-net.com>), which describes itself as "Your source for the DB web community." Webmaster Dan, who goes by the handle Misutiku, has posted over eighty intelligent and thoughtfully written reviews of Second Class, and Retired. For each site he discusses the layout, the content, the good and bad, and offers suggestions. The bulk of the reviews are of fan sites, avoiding the purely commercial pages. Dan has also interviewed a number of webmasters, discussing not only their pages, but the Dragon Ball fan community as well.

Dan offers suggestions for those who want to submit their sites for review. Additionally, he even has a couple of tutorials on creating images for web pages. A unique feature here is the Community News section. While most other Dragon Ball pages offer news about the TV Show or games, Seven Stars features news and gossip about the various DBZ web sites and the people who run them. The layout here is clean, easy to read, and every web page discussed has a clickable link. Seven Stars has even been running a contest. Entrants are asked to review one of three sites in the Seven Stars style. As of this writing, there has not been a winner, but you may want to check and see if the contest is still running. In any event, after visiting Seven Stars, you may want to click on the "Contact" link and send Dan a note of appreciation. By encouraging creative Dragon Ball web pages and helping the DBZ Web Community stay in contact, he is fulfilling the promise of the Internet. ★

Of course, I happen to write web site reviews here in Beckett's Dragon Ball Z Collector Magazine as well, and I'm always interested in seeing what's new and different out there. You can send your favorite DBZ site addresses to me at revry@panix.com. Be sure to write "DBZ Readers Picks" in the subject line of your email, so I will read it. I receive hundreds of letters every month, and unfortunately, cannot answer most of them. But be assured that I do make it a point to try and visit each and every page sent to me.

Dragon Ball sites. He keeps track of them and lets his readers know when they've changed or vanished as well. The sites are classified as Seven Star (a truly rare ranking), First Class,
